

New Digging Season at Our Autumn Site 2006

We opened the site for the new digging season on the 27th of May.

Lizby our Finds Manager baked a cake. Clare and Pip burnt the sausages and burgers

And it rained

The happy diggers

Lizby's cake

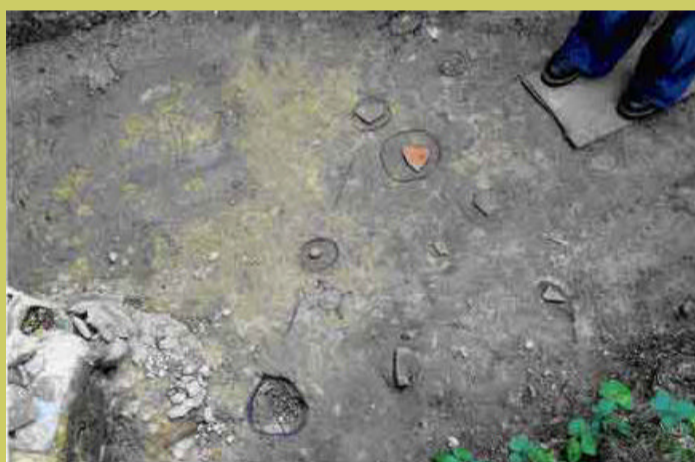

On Lizby's cake, you can just make out the word "Autumn" I think it said Autumn? At least it was not burnt!

But back to the real stuff 'the digging', we left you last season with the top of what we thought could be the foundations that we were looking for.

and it's looking good.

And so are these post holes

This site is so full of surprises.

Lizby our Finds Manager concludes that, the family that lived on our site in the late 1600s seem to have kept on dropping things, mostly domestic stuff, dressmaking pins was one of these and what could be the loop from a purse
"That's great for us" Lizby said

(Pictures of these finds will be in our "Finds Tray" soon)

This week we came across a "new" feature, But we are sure that this will turn out to be more of a demolishing level than any thing else.
